FAIRBANKS FAILS TO GET AN AUDIENCE WITH POPE

Engagement to Speak Before Methodist Church Bars Him From Vatican.

TALKS TO AMERICANS

Former Vice President to Be Received by King Victor Emmanuel on Saturday.

ROME, Feb. 6.—The visit to Rome of Charles W. Fairbanks, former vice president of the United States, brought about a delicate situation because of the fact that he wished to pay his respects to the king, to the pope and to the American Methodist church.

By a tactful arrangement Mr. Fairbanks, audience with King Victor Emmanuel was fixed for Saturday, and that with the pope for Monday. But when everything seemed satisfactorily planned, the vatican announced that it would be impossible for his holiness to receive the former vice president if he carried out his intention to speak in the American Methodist church here, because the Methodists had been active in proselyting among the Catholics.

Negotiations were immediately begun to avoid any unpleasantness, and in these negotiations prominent vatican officials exerted every influence to remove the difficulties that had so unexpectedly presented themselves to Mr. Fairbanks' audience with the pope. But Mr. Fairbanks finally declared that although he was animated by a strong desire to pay his respects to the head of the Catholic church, he could not withdraw from his promise to deliver an address before the American Methodist church.

Monsignor Kennedy, rector of the American college (Catholic) gave a dinner at noon in honor of Mr. Fairbanks. The hall was decorated with American flags. Among those present were 144 American students.

Toasts Christian Churches.

Mr. Fairbanks in rising gave a toast to the Christian church, making no distinction of denomination. He declared that the Catholic church had accomplished great things for God and humanity, while past prejudices against the Catholics had entirely disappeared, for they were ever at the front when the integrity of the country needed to be defended or its dignity to be upheld.

At the American Methodist church, Mr. Fairbanks' address acquired exceptional importance because of the incident with the vatican and it is looked upon as his final answer to the conditions imposed upon him relative to his audience with the pope. Mr. Fairbanks said:

"It is impossible to emphasize too

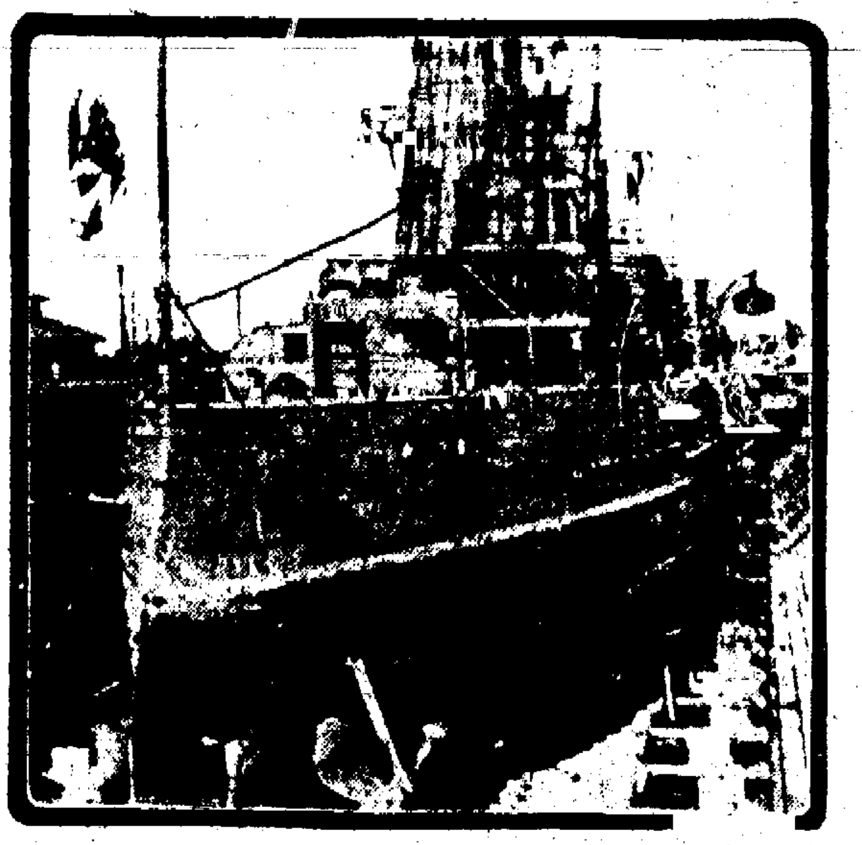
IS A MOMENTOUS EXPERIMENT



PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—An experiment is about to be tried on the battleship Indiana. The warship has been drydocked at the League Island navy yard and work begun to fit her with a pair of bronze fins that are to be worked from the bridge. The newly designed brake consists of broad bladed wings which fold against the side of the ship when not in use. To make a quick stop to avoid collision, the mere pulling of a lever causes the wings to open out amidships and the pressure of the water against the blades is expected to stop the vessel at once.

BABIES DELAY WORK OF SETTLING ESTATE

Arrival of New Heirs Handicaps Trustee in Getting Date Set for Hearing.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 6.—Babies are arriving so fast in the homes of heirs of the late William A. Hargadine, one of the millionaire founders of the Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods company, that lawyers and the courts are wondering whether the estate ever will be settled.

Several hundred thousand dollars' worth of real estate is being held in trust to be turned into cash for the beneficiaries. But babies have persistently interposed legal obstacles.

These cherubs have not only defied the courts and lawyers by their advent, but they have thwarted the plans of their trustee, who has been striving for three years to get a court setting. Each time a petition has been filed, however, the announcement of birth in the family has called all legal processes to a halt, for, under the law, no estate can be settled without entering the appearance of every heir.

CHANGES FLAG SHIPS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Rear Admiral Sebree, commander of the Pacific squadron notified the navy department today that he transferred his flag and staff yesterday from the cruiser Tennessee to the cruiser California. The transfer was made at Honolulu, where the squadron now is.

INCORPORATION BILL READY FOR CONGRESS

MANY CHANGES IN FINAL DRAFT.

Measure Gives Government Power to Appoint Receiver When Deemed Necessary.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The long-anticipated federal incorporation bill to embody the recommendations made in his special message by President Taft will be introduced in Congress tomorrow, probably by Senator Clark of Wyoming and Representative Parker of New Jersey, chairman respectively of the Senate and House Committee on judiciary. The final draft, an outline of which follows, differs materially from the earlier drafts and represents several months of study by the President and his cabinet.

No incorporation formed under the terms of the proposed act will be permitted to purchase, acquire or hold stock in any other corporation, nor could any corporation organized under the act, or the laws of any state or foreign country for the purpose of any like business, acquire or hold the stock of a corporation formed under this act; and no such corporation would be permitted to have banking powers. Forfeiture of charter may result if any corporation organized under the act enters into any contract or combination or engages in any conspiracy against interstate or foreign trade or commerce or shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize any part thereof, contrary to the Sherman act, or shall otherwise violate the laws of the United States. The charters of all corporations are made subject to alteration, suspension or repeal by Congress.

Must File Annual Reports.

Annual reports must be filed with the bureau of corporations and the commissioner of the bureau may call for special reports. Ten days after the declaration of any dividend a financial statement showing the amount of net earnings must be filed with the commissioner of corporations. At least a majority of the directors of the corporations are required at all times to be citizens of the United States and bona-fide residents therein.

Stock may be paid for in cash or in property but every certificate of stock issued in payment for property must contain a statement that it is so issued, and before any stock is so issued a full statement must be filed setting forth a full description of the property, the number of shares to be issued in payment therefor and whether such shares are to have a par value or not; the names and addresses of the vendors of the property, the [illegible] connection with the company; the terms of any agreement with respect to the transfer of the property; full details as to price; all amounts paid or to be paid to each vendor, and if the vendors are directors of the corporation or stockholders, a statement of the price paid or agreed to be paid by them for the property to be sold to the corporation. [illegible] here the stock to be issued for such payment has a par value [illegible] must be filed in the bureau of corporations an appraisement of the value of the property by two disinterested appraisers approved in writing by the commissioner, who may also appoint other appraisers.

Commissioner Must Approve.

No stock with a par value may be issued in payment of property acquired by the corporation to any amount in par value exceeding the value approved by the commissioner after such appraisement.

Provisions are made for the increase or decrease of the capital stock of a corporation and for other amendments to the articles of association by vote of two-thirds of the stockholders of the corporation. On similar vote the corporation may borrow money, issue bonds and mortgage property or confer upon the holder of any bond or obligation

JAPAN DISAPPROVES OF UNITED STATES' STAND ON MANCHURIAN RAILROAD QUESTION

TOKIO, Jan. 10.—The proposition of the United States for the neutralization of the railroads in Manchuria came as a surprise and the publication of the details of the note which was handed to the Japanese government December 10 by the American ambassador aroused an immediate chorus of disapproval.

Putting aside all questions of the business or political advisability of the proposition, sentiment centered most largely in to the attitude of the people of Japan. The foreign office, while admitting that such a note had been received, would give no intimation as to how it had been or would be treated.

Count T. Hayashi, the last minister for foreign affairs and former Ambassador to Great Britain, Count Okuma, formerly one of the most active statesmen, and everyone whose name carried any weight whatsoever, were quoted in the newspapers in strenuous objections to giving up what is claimed to be the harvest of the war with Russia.

Represents Material Gain.

"Tens of thousands of our soldiers died in Manchuria in the war with Russia," they said. "We got little out of the war except what was political. The material side is represented by the South Manchurian railway and the Antung-Mukden. The leased territory and Port Arthur were only recovered. These we won ten years before and lost again by the intrigues of certain powers when we were a weaker nation. Now the United States, hitherto always our friends, comes into combination with other powers and proposes that we should give up the South Manchurian railway, a paying road, and the Antung-Mukden, the continuation of our railroads in Korea, to the control of foreigners and strangers.

"The reasons assigned for this are that the principle of the 'open door' equal opportunity' for all nations doing business in China must be preserved. But Japan has entered into solemn agreement with the powers of America and Europe to preserve the integrity of China and to maintain the principle of the open door and equal opportunity in concert with China and with all other nations and to this Japan had adhered religiously."

"In two ways, therefore, the United States attacks the honor and sentiment of the people of Japan. Is it any wonder that we refuse to permit our government even to suggest that the proposal has been received by Japan with equanimity?"

This statement practically voices the entire expression heard from the public during the first 48 hours after the first news of receipt of Secretary Knox's note. But, the further sentiment was expressed thus:

"The riots that followed the making of the treaty of Portsmouth would not be a circumstance to the trouble that would follow [illegible] Japan of her rights in Manchuria, even though she received twice the intrinsic value."

Foreign Business Suffers Too.

So far as can be learned by responsible investigators there is little or no foundation for the charges of discrimination brought against Japan in connection with trade in Manchuria. The leading business firms of England and America, are in common with the Japanese, suffering from a depreciation in that trade in this territory, but that depreciation is due to conditions over which neither the Japanese nor any other country has any control.

One thing may be set down as absolutely certain and that is that Japan is not going to give up her right in the South Manchuria railway until their rights shall be terminated by the lapse of the terms for which Japan has control. Japan was given control of the South Manchurian railway for a period of [illegible] years from the signing of the Portsmouth treaty. The Antung-Mukden railway will remain in possession of Japan for 15 years.

There are now in Manchuria about [illegible] Japanese settlers and since they are within the zone of the railroad where Japan has a sphere of influence, the proposed taking over by the powers would place the interests of these in jeopardy.

'CHANTICLEER' SHOWS POETIC GENIUS OF ROSTAND

Probably Most Unique Production Ever Staged No Human Characters.

MAY BE TOO ARTISTIC

Remarkable Audience Sees Dress Rehearsal Given in a Paris Theater.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—The dress rehearsal of Edmund Rostand's "Chanticleer" at the Porte St. Martin theater tonight in the presence of a remarkable audience comprising the elite of the literary, artistic and dramatic world of Paris, as well as other European capitals, was an artistic success of the first magnitude, the exquisite verse being up to the finest traditions of Rostand's poetic genius.

The brilliancy of the first act, which was preceded by a charming prologue, delivered by Jean Coquelin, preparing the audience for the atmosphere of the piece, fairly set the theater mad with enthusiasm. But the second and third acts, which were somewhat tedious were less favorably received.

In the last act, however, enthusiasm was revived to the boiling point. There were five calls after the curtain fell but M. Rostand himself did not appear. M. Guitry, who took the part of Chanticleer, stepped before the curtain and simply expressed his thanks.

Wonderfully Staged.

The piece was wonderfully staged and the plot thrilling. M. Guitry, Mme. Simonne Lebargy, the hen pheasant; Galipaux, the black bird, and Coquelin, the dog, carried off the honors.

The secret of the many delays incident to the presentation of the play is now explained by the changes made at the end of the play. The hen pheasant, after [illegible] trying to induce Chanticleer, whom she has enticed to the forest, to [illegible] 24 hours during their nuptials, betrays him and he returns to the barnyard to his faithful hens.

The critics generally consider that the brilliancy of the verse surpasses even "Cyrano" if that is possible, but the artistic note struck is so high that they doubt whether the play will be a popular success after curiosity has worn off. It is rumored that M. Rostand himself will play the role of Chanticleer at the benefit to be given the flood sufferers.

Rostand's "Chanticleer" probably is the most unique production ever presented on the stage. No human character appears in the cast. The dramatis personae are fowls, birds and animals and as they are necessarily as large as the men and women who enact the parts, everything which appears upon the stage is upon a corresponding scale.

Chanticleer, the hero (Guitry) is filled with illusions about his place in the world. He imagines he is master of the sun; that the sun rises at the end of night because Chanticleer has awakened and crowed. The play dis- history of his conception of Chanticleer alone.

Settings in Proportion.

The first act opens with the sun rising upon a barnyard. The mountainous debris pile is on one side of the stage. A fence which seems immense, because it is in proportion, separates the yard from a road beyond which is a forest background. To the right a wooden shoe, forgotten by the farmer's wife, is of the size it would appear to the chicken, and nearby a chair completes the scale illusion, its legs, which alone are seen, being eight-yard high.

Rostand in an interview explains the history of his conception of Chanticleer.

"In 1901," he said, "while taking a walk in the outskirts of Cambo, I was passing a humble farm when I suddenly stopped before the barnyard. It was just an ordinary barnyard containing the usual [illegible] wire netting, manure pile and within, the animals, hens, ducks, guinea fowl, geese, turkeys, a cat asleep, a dog wandering about, in brief, a very common spectacle.

"I watched with interest when suddenly in stalked the cock. He entered proudly, boldly, like a ruler, with disdain in his eye and a certain rhythmic movement of the head that produced the irresistible impression of a hero. He advanced like a buccaneer, like a man in quest of adventure, a king among his subjects. In a flash I saw in this spectacle a play. I returned to the barnyard many times and rapidly the framework of the play was constructed in my mind."

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION BLOWS 7 TO DEATH

PROMINENT MINING MEN ARE THE VICTIMS.

Accident Near Phoenix, Ariz., Due to Carelessness of Man Operating Motor Car.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb 6.—Heedless of the warning of a foreman in charge of excavating operations along the line of the private motor road from Kelvin to the Ray Copper mines, the motorman of a gasoline car containing six passengers ran his car close to the sputtering fuse of a heavy charge of dynamite this afternoon, and the car and its seven occupants were blown to atoms. The killed are:

J. B. JOYCE,
A. S. BIEBER,
J. C. GRIFFIN, civil engineers, employed by the Ray Consolidated Copper company.
R. P. COLMAN of Salt Lake City.
W. H. FREELAND.
WALTER C. FRENZ, mining engineers employed by Henry Krumb, and engaged in sampling and development work at the Ray mines.
H. LYALL, motorman of the car.

The foreman had discovered a missed shot in the excavation at noon and before the motor car came in sight he had relighted the fuse. As the car approached he signaled the motorman and warned him of the impending explosion. Motor Lyall, evidently believing he could take his car past the charge to safety before the explosion, paid no heed to the warning and started again at full speed.

Just as the car was passing the charge the explosion came, and the car with its load of human freight, was blown high in the air amid a great cloud of debris. The dead men were all prominent in mining affairs in Arizona.

Joyce's home is in Denver, Biebers in Cleveland, and Frenz in Berkeley, Cal. The others were not known. The bodies will be brought to Phoenix tomorrow. A late dispatch mentions the name of Ben Truax among the dead, making eight, but it is thought this may be an error of confirmation of names.

SAILORS POOR SWIMMERS

More Than 2,500 Men in Atlantic Fleet of Navy Lack This Valuable Accomplishment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Attention is directed in an official report by Rear Admiral Schroeder, in command of the Atlantic fleet, [illegible] maneuvers in Guantanamo bay, Cuba, to the remarkable fact that more than 2,500 men in the fleet cannot swim.

In a brief report of the fleet's operations in the last week, the commander says instructions were held for the men who are not at home in the water.

During the week landing forces of the Georgia, the New Jersey, the Nebraska and the Rhode Island were encamped on Deer Point. Rifle and pistol practice and various drills were held.

DIFFICULT TO CONVICT WOMEN WITH JURIES

Prosecutor in Ford Blackmail Case Says It's Due to "Diseased Mentality."

CINCINNATI, Feb. 6.—After 24 hours deliberation the jury in the case of Mrs. Jeanette Stewart-Ford, charged with blackmailing Charles L. Warriner, defaulting local treasurer of the Big Four railroad, was unable to reach an agreement and was discharged.

Judge Swing said after dismissing the jury that he had been informed that on the last ballot eight jurors had stood for acquittal and four for conviction.

The unexpected end to the sensational case was explained by two jurors as due to the fact that a majority of [illegible] testimony of Warriner. They asserted that a man who had confessed to embezzling for 25 years would not hesitate to perjure himself against a woman who, he believed, had been the cause of his exposure.

Prosecutor Hunt said tonight that he expected to bring the woman to trial again within the next three weeks. At the same time he intimated that he might abandon the case. He said that the result of the trial was due to a "species of diseased mentality which seemed to affect American jurors and prevent them from convicting a woman on any charge." He declared that the same process of reasoning was evident in the sympathy displayed for Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and Nan Patterson.

Pending her trial Mrs. Ford was released under $2,500 bond, furnished by a holding company.

BILL FIXES BASIS OF COMMON CARRIERS' LIABILITY

Measure Is Most Radical of the Proposed Legislation Before Present Congress.

WILL AFFECT RAILROADS

Committee Sets Date for Hearing. Would Overturn Present Employers Liability Law.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—One of the most radical pieces of proposed legislation before the present Congress and one which heretofore has not occupied much attention is now being given serious attention by the judiciary committee of the House and hearing on it has been ordered for February 17, to which a number of prominent railroad men have been invited.

It is the bill introduced by Representative Sabath of Illinois which will require all persons, "carrying occupations and trades subject to the regulative power of Congress," including railroads, express companies and sleeping car companies, to pay compensation on fixed basis to injured employes. The legislation if enacted would overturn the present employers liability law, and in fact, revolutionize the existing system of indemnity for personal injuries.

The bill defines the amount of compensation to be paid by employers to employes, in cases of injury or death, basing it upon the amount of the previous earning power of the victim, and provides that it shall be paid in the form of an annuity. The bill is based upon the laws of England and Germany. Such legislation was favored in one of the messages of former President Roosevelt and President Taft is also said to have commented favorably upon it.

Analyzes Bill in Letter.

[illegible] nia, chairman of the [illegible] committee of the judiciary committee, analyses the bill in a letter which he has sent to officials of the leading railroads.

Mr. Moon says in part:

"You will observe this bill both by its title and its scope, aims at the entire overthrow of the existing principles of law affecting the liability of common carriers engaged in interstate commerce and in the carrying of the mails, to their employes for acts of negligence resulting in injury or death.

"It eliminates entirely all common law or statutory defenses based upon the principles of contributory or comparative negligence; the existing doctrine of negligence of coemployes, and for risk of employment, and subjects the common carrier to a fixed and def-

LEGALITY DESERT LAND ENTRY TRANSFERS BEFORE RECLAMATION SOON TO BE DECIDED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Attorneys on both sides of the controversy are preparing for the final determination by the supreme court of the United States of the long-mooted question of whether desert land entries may be transferred before reclamation has been made.

A case involving that point has been set for argument by the court on February 21. At the same time the court is to hear arguments as to whether it is a crime against the United States to graze sheep on a forest reservation without permission of the government.

The question of the right to transfer a desert land entry arises in a criminal prosecution. William H. Hammers of southern California was indicted in the federal court for the southern district of California on a charge of committing perjury in an affidavit made in the interest of Beulah Rose Beekler, to the effect that improvements of a certain value had been made on desert land in Imperial county, California.

Question Considered Before.

In defense, it was set up that the land in question had been entered by Granville M. Boyer, on August 14, 1907, at the land office in Los Angeles and his attempted transfer of his rights in the land on August 26, 1907, to Beulah Rose Beekler was void because the right to make such transfer was not possessed by Boyer. It was argued that as Boyer did not possess such a right, the affidavit of Hammers was immaterial. The district court sustained the defense and the government appealed to the supreme court.

The question of the ability of an entryman to transfer a desert land entry has been considered by the court before. On the previous occasion the court held that under the desert land act of 1877, the entryman had no right which he could sell or transfer. The government's contention in the present case is that under the desert land act of 1891 such a right is given the entryman.

It is said that thousands of [illegible] who have [illegible] by transfer, under the desert land act of 1891 will be affected by the decision. This is regarded as true particularly of the Imperial valley in California.

Sheep Men in Trouble.

The question whether it is a crime to graze sheep without permission on a forest reservation has arisen in the indictments of Pierre Frimade, J. P. Carajos and Antonio Inda, sheep men of California, who were charged with having grazed their sheep, without the permission of the government, in the Sierra forest reserve in California. These indictments were all brought in the federal court for the southern district of California.

By act of Congress approved June 4, 1897 the [illegible] later the secretary of agriculture was directed to make provision for the protection of the forest reserves. It was provided that any violation of the provisions so made should be made punishable according to the revised statutes.

In 1906, Secretary Wilson promulgated a regulation, requiring all persons to procure a permit before grazing animals in a forest reserve. It was by reason of alleged violations of this regulation that the indictments were brought.

Attorneys for the sheep men contended, however, that the act of 1897 was void, so far as it attached penalties to any violation of regulations thereafter to be made because it sought to provide a penalty for a crime not completely defined. It was also argued that the act was an attempt to confer legislative authority on an executive officer. The [illegible] and the government [illegible] to the supreme court.

ABANDON BURNING SHIP

Nothing Heard of Crew of Derelict, Believed to Be George F. Phillips of Delaware.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—A vessel on fire and abandoned at sea was reported today by wireless telegraph to the naval hydrographic office. The wireless message came from a merchant vessel whose call signal is "Ua," but the name of which is not listed.

The message in effect was that the merchantman had passed a green schooner with black board and white stern, with yellow stripe, on fire at sea, in latitude 33.25 north, longitude 73 40 west. Her name in black letters appeared to be George P. Phillips, Delaware. Her boats were gone and nobody was aboard. A high sea was running at the time. The telegram was signed "Davis."

It appears probable that the burned schooner was the "George F Phillips" of Seaford, Del., which sailed from Boon, January 22 for Wilmington, N. C., in command of Captain Caskins. She carried a crew of four. The vessel was built at Bethel, Del., in 1901, was of 270 gross tonnage, 130.2 feet long and 28.3 feet beam. So far as reported, the crew has not been picked up or landed at any port.

SEVERE COLD WAVE SWEEPS THE EAST

Below Zero in Many Places and Several Persons Are Dead of Exposure.

NEW YORK, Feb 6.—Intense cold gripped the east tonight. In New York city, the mercury stood at one degree above zero at midnight, equaling the low record for the season.

A 40-mile gale swept New York and vicinity throughout the day and night, driving pedestrians indoors and causing great suffering to those who are exposed. The streets were practically deserted tonight. An unidentified man was frozen to death in Boston, a fisherman met a similar fate in Buffalo, while off Atlantic City a tramp steamer was forced to anchor because of the gale.

Up state in New York a driving snow made conditions worse.

The average temperature today in New York city was 11 degrees above zero as compared with 46 on the same day last year, and 30, the average temperature for the day for the last 33 years.

The extreme cold drove hundreds of homeless men and women to the municipal lodging houses for shelter tonight. Three hundred and seventy-two men had been taken in. Park Row and the Bowery were swept of their nocturnal population.

The cold air, moderating as it extends south, reached as far as Florida, where frost was experienced.

3 Below at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Feb. 6.—Three degrees below zero was registered here at 8 o'clock tonight, the lowest temperature in several years. There was a slight fall of snow.

One fisherman was frozen to death and two others, believed to have met a similar fate, are missing.

Zero in Boston.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb 6.—Thermometers in Utica range from 12 to 14 degrees an hour, until at midnight thermometers registered zero. The wind blew 26 miles an hour. The frozen body of an unidentified man, dead from exposure, was found beside a highway in Northboro.

Below Zero at Other Points.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb 6.—Thermometers in Utica range from 12 to 14 degrees below zero late tonight. At Fulton, 20 below was reported.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb 6.—With the thermometer registering seven degrees above zero tonight is the coldest experienced here this winter.

PITTSBURG, Feb 7.—At 1 o'clock this morning (Monday) the temperature here was within three degrees of zero. Other points in Western Pennsylvania report the mercury already from three to ten degrees below.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb 6.—The trial of Binger Hermann, former chief of the general land office at Washington, on the charge of having defrauding the government out of public lands will enter upon its last stages tomorrow.

Little evidence remains to be given and it is expected that arguments will begin Tuesday.

BELIEVE CREW PERISHED

No Word Received of Five Men Who Went to Seek Aid for Steamer Wrecked January 6.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb 6.—Little hope is entertained among shipping men familiar with the north that the five men who went with Second Mate Swanson to seek aid for the shipwrecked passengers and crew of the steamer Farallon will be heard from again.

At the time Swanson and his crew left the ship a fearful storm was raging and the water was full of ice floes. The latest news from Kodiak, the destination of the men in the life boat, was received January 28. At that time they had been out 17 days and had not been seen. Besides Second Mate Swanson, there were in the boat two seamen, Charles Peterson and Otto Nelson and three passengers, Captain Wedding and Albert Bailey, of the launch Sea Wolf, and Charles Lorne, a lansman.

The steamship Victoria, which effected the rescue of the Farallon survivors from their camp on Iliamna bay on the twenty-eighth day after the shipwreck, is on the way to Seattle and should arrive here Thursday or Friday.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—MRS. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

OLDFIELD WINNER OF A MATCH AUTO CONTEST

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—The second Madri Gras automobile meet at New Orleans was concluded this afternoon at the fair grounds at the race track. About 2,500 people witnessed the contests and were disappointed in the program. There were only four races instead of six scheduled, and one of these was an uninteresting drive between amateurs.

Barney Oldfield defeated Ralph De Palma in what was scheduled to be the chief event of the meet. The contest was to have been a 10-mile match race. In the fourth mile De Palma burst a tire and was forced out. Up to that time he and Oldfield had been running neck and neck and the race promised to be close. De Palma used a Fiat, and Oldfield a Benz car.

Summaries:

Five miles: Klaw and Erlanger trophy for amateurs—Fred Shaw, Knox, first; C. S. Bragg, Fiat, second, Jack D'Arcy, Stoddard-Dayton, third. Time, 6:05. Handicaps: Shaw, 15 seconds, Bragg, scratch, Darcy, 45 seconds.

Ten miles, special world championship match: Oldfield, Benz, first; De Palma, Fiat, withdrew. Time, 9.36.

BACKS PLANS FOR NEW AIRSHIP LINE

CHARLES J. GLIDDEN

Charles J Glidden, the millionaire automobile and airship enthusiast of Boston, is progressing rapidly with his plans for an airship passenger and freight line between Boston and New York. He plans to have stations at South Framingham, Worcester, Bridgport and other points between, and hopes to have the service in working order within the next six months. This is not a money-making scheme on the part of Mr Glidden, who has associated with him some of the best known aeronauts and aviators in America. He is also working out plans for a great aerial meet in Boston next summer. He says that his plan is to make Boston the great aviation center of the country, and to this end is working to have all the great foreign aviators come here to compete. Mr Glidden has equipped his apartments at the Hotel Somerset with a wireless apparatus which he intends to use to keep in touch with the airship fleet of New England. He believes it entirely feasible to equip balloons and airships with a wireless apparatus by which they can communicate with various [illegible].

Mr Glidden has always been interested in telegraphy, having begun as a messenger for the Northern Telegraph company of Lowell in 1877.

He became interested in telephones in 1896 and served as president of several companies that he organized. He retired from active business in 1900, having made a fortune in telephone stocks. Since then he has been interested in automobile travel and the development of aerial navigation. He and Mrs. Glidden together have toured 39 countries of Europe, Asia and Australia by automobile.

NO DANGER OF OVER-POPULATION

Bolton Hall, in Practical Ideas

It has been said that the time is not far off when the United States will be unable to support her inhabitants. But those who think that have either forgotten or have not reckoned with the new intensive cultivation of the land. The Island of Guernsey in the south of England, is from four to seven miles in length and about four miles in width. It has a resident population of 41,000, and a visiting population of 30,000 a year, which it supports. About $4,500,000 worth of farm and garden stuff, or a little less than $400 worth to the acre is produced annually, with only 11,623 acres. There [illegible] if the whole state of New York were cultivated and populated as that is cultivated and populated, it would yield annually $15,600,000,000 worth of farm and garden produce and support 323,641,472 people—that is, about four times the population of the entire United States. Wherein then lies the danger of over-population? Only in monopolizing and holding idle the land; where there are unused lands there are bound to be idle hands, for all that we eat, use and wear comes from the land by labor. "Over-population" and "pauper labor" are not the works of nature, and if they should ever come, the people themselves will be responsible.

THE POINT OF VIEW.

From Everybody's Magazine.

William had just returned from college, a specialist in certain matters. He wore a fancy waistcoat and a necktie that spoke for itself. He entered the library where his father was reading. The old gentleman looked up and surveyed his son. The longer he looked the more disgusted he became.

"Son," he finally blurted out, "you look like a damn fool!"

Later the old major who lived next door came in and greeted the boy heartily. "William," he said, with undisguised admiration, "you look exactly like your father did 30 years ago when he came back from school!"

"Yes," replied William, with a smile, "so father was just telling me."

FOUND OUT.

From the Washington Star.

Representative Mann of Illinois, the great objector, has a manner that on occasions is calculated to frighten an inexperienced or timid newspaper man if there are any such these days. But he is being found out. The other day a correspondent who knows him pretty well went to ask him some questions that he had been told by his paper to put to the Illinois congressman. They were foolish questions. That almost goes without saying, as half the queries that come by wire to members of the Capitol press galleries would be considered first rate evidence before a jury that the sender was afflicted with congenital idiocy, or worse. But the correspondent had to ask the questions for the sake, and Mr Mann, who was feeling a bit off his feed that morning, blew up like a mogul locomotive. After he had whistled and snorted and cut scandalous capers while the newspaper man broke in.

"Mr. Mann," said he, "I wish you would get that out of your system, for I am in a hurry. And you are not scaring me a little bit. You bark a lot, but you don't bite."

Mr Mann looked surprised, swallowed his palate a couple of times, breathed heavily and finally looked sheepish.

"Good gracious," he said, "I'll be blamed if I haven't been found out."

LARGE NUMBER CONVERTS

Y. M. C. A. Evangelistic Meeting at Crystal Theater Yesterday Very Successful.

A large number of converts was obtained at yesterday afternoon's Young Men's Christian association revival meeting, held at the Crystal theater. The Rev. J. H. Franklin, pastor of the First Baptist church, preached the sermon. His subject was, "Living the Kingdom." A special musical program was given and every seat in the theater was taken. Mr. Franklin said in part:

"Time was when the Kingdom of Heaven was understood by many to be a post-mortem condition. We are now seeing clearly that Christ taught that the Kingdom is a condition for this world as well as the next. Jesus gave no formal definition of that kingdom.

Must Suffer Hardships.

"The man who lives the kingdom today must suffer hardship. The standing army makes small appeal to strong men with its promise of idleness and a soldiers' home at the end. But let the call go forth that men are needed to free imprisoned Americans in Nicaragua and before the sun sets tomorrow there will be 200,000 volunteers ready for the heroic task and caring little for immediate compensation.

"But the kingdom has not come. Injustice still reigns in many quarters. Christ calls men to live the principles of the kingdom. To live these principles means cross-bearing. But after all, the best life is the life of effort to help others.

"Psychology is teaching us that conversion is a normal human experience. Moreover, it teaches us that we become like that to which we surrender our lives. Conversion is the surrender of our lives to Christ. If we would really live the principles of his kingdom we must all surrender our lives to the King.

Purdy, who is the son of a wealthy New England real estate man, married December 22. He purchased tickets to 83 different places, some of the tickets being over different roads to the same points. Colorado is the first place to which he started. Whether he will make the entire trip, or start off on a different route, is not known.

BILL FIXES BASIS

inite liability for injury or death to employes without regard to the negligence of the defendant.

"It substitutes statutory compensation for common law liability and makes this compensation a distinct element of operating expenses."

Measure Very Radical.

"This bill is being vigorously pushed by its promoters. One hearing already has been had by the sub-committee. The hearing was confined entirely to the principle involved, not to the details of the bill. The hearing developed the fact that the change proposed by the bill was so radical, and if enacted into law would impose an obligation upon the common carriers of the country engaged in interstate commerce so different from that already existing that the committee would not be justified in passing upon it without affording an opportunity to them to be heard.

"In pursuance of this action, we have postponed the hearing until Thursday, February 17, at 10:30 a. m., at which time and place we shall be glad to hear the views of your company upon the subject."

Mr. Moon said that his committee had been "seriously impressed by this proposed legislation and we are giving it the most careful consideration."

Would Bind Government.

Mr. Sabath, author of the bill, has been working on the idea for a number of years, and has carried on a general propaganda in its favor. He announced at a recent hearing on his bill that when it was enacted into law, he was ready to retire from public life, satisfied with his achievements.

The bill is applicable to railroad and steamship companies engaged in interstate or foreign commerce and to any company engaged in any capacity in handling the mails of the United States. Even the United States would be bound under its terms to pay compensation to its employes in the postal service injured or killed in the performance of their duties.

In the event of the death of an employe as a result of injuries, employers would be required to pay an annuity equaling 70 per cent of his average monthly earnings to his family or next of kin. Fifty per cent of the employe's maximum monthly earnings would be paid in cases of total disability, not exceeding six months. Beyond this length of time, the injured employe would receive two-thirds of the amount of his earnings.

Specifies Liabilities.

The measure goes into the minutest detail in regulating the payment for injuries, specifying how much shall be paid for the loss of an eye, an arm, a finger, a toe, loss or impairment of sight, hearing, or similar injury and including medical, surgical and hospital treatment. The loss of a toe is fixed at 5 per cent, the loss of both eyes at 75 per cent and the loss of the right hand at 60 per cent.

The bill would establish a court to be known as the federal commission of injury awards. The court would consist of three members, appointed by the President, at a salary of $8,000 per year and would have full authority to inquire into and prosecute claims, and to employ necessary assistants.

AMERICAN FRUIT TRADE IN GERMANY HAMPERED

Decline Is Due to Operations of Speculative Buyers in the United States.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—American fruit trade with Germany has been hampered in recent years by the operations of speculative buyers in the United States, according to a report of the bureau of manufactures from Consul General Skinner at Hamburg.

The trouble could be overcome, in the opinion of the consul general, if the fruit producers would combine and set up standard grades and issue official certificates to accompany their shipments, so that the importers at Hamburg could be certain of getting the goods they pay for.

Instead of permitting fruit of American origin to be sold at auction at Hamburg for the account of commission firms, Mr. Skinner further suggests that producers in this country perfect an organization for handling their own product and provide cold storage at Hamburg in order to extend their business.

Germany imports $22,000,000 worth of fruit annually and by means of the facilities at Hamburg re-exports a considerable quantity to other countries. Taking apples as an illustration, the importations into Hamburg by America have steadily declined from 14,906 tons in 1905 to 4,325 tons in 1908, while the total importations from all countries has greatly increased. One reason for the decrease, it is said, is the fact that grades of American fruit are not always what they are represented to be.

A matter of general complaint, also it is stated, is that speculative firms that take orders do not fill them if the market is going up.

tion the right to convert the principal after five years from date of the bonds into stock of the corporation of a designated class.

The approval of the commissioner of corporations must be secured before the capital stock can be increased to the amount necessary to provide for such conversion and this right shall not be given unless the bonds are issued or sold at par or upwards, or if for less than par, then for not less than their reasonable market value as ascertained by the commissioner.

Whenever a corporation shall fail to pay any written obligation at maturity or if any execution against its property shall be returned unsatisfied, the commissioner of corporations shall appoint a special agent to examine into its condition. If this agent reports that the corporation's condition is so unsound as to make its continuance in business contrary to public welfare, the commissioner may appoint a receiver.

Within 30 days the corporation may apply to the nearest United States court to enjoin proceedings and the court may discharge the receiver and enjoin the corporation's interests from further proceeds.

The real and personal property of corporations are to be subject to state, county and municipal tax. Incorporation fees are to be paid amounting to one-tenth of 1 per cent of the total capital up to $10,000,000; one-twentieth of 1 per cent from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, and $250 on every million dollars in excess of $20,000,000.

strongly the good work the Christian church is doing in all lands and amongst all nationalities. It is gratifying that the American churches established in all countries are asserting a wider influence today than ever in their history.

"The agitation going on in the political and economic worlds is due to Christianity breaking down the castes and prejudices and lifting mankind to a higher plane. The idea which is taking root in political institutions is due to the expanding influence of Christianity.

"All Christian churches are worthy of support. They above all should be inspired by a generous, tolerant spirit towards each other. Nothing is more unseemly than the narrow jealousy which they occasionally manifest toward each other. There is room for all. Cease the narrow denominational wars and direct your energies toward the common enemy. Let the Catholics and the Protestants of all denominations vie in carrying forward the work of the Master, which is worthy of the best in them all."

MICHAL IN "THE SHEPHERD KING."

Which Wright Lorimer Will Present at the Opera House Wednesday and Thursday and Thursday Matinee.

romantic drama, "The Shepherd King," the story of which is based on a fairly literal dramatization of the Old Testament story of David, the shepherd boy of Israel, who afterwards became king, as related in the second book of Samuel and the first book of Kings. Mr. Lorimer has met with success in the role of David in the east. The star is surrounded by a company of 100 people, prominent among whom are Brigham Royce, Irving White, Daniel Gilfether, Frank Campbello, Harold La Coste, Earnest Roseman, Daniel Lawler, Walter Brown, Helen Singer, Frederica Going, Alison Skipworth, Ruth Copley and Josh Ferrier. The production is very elaborate.

"THE LAND OF NOD"

One of the best performances given in this city last season will be repeated at the Opera House Friday evening. It is Samuel E. Rork's spectacular production of "The Land of Nod," an extravaganza of the most amusing and praiseworthy kind. It is built substantially along the lines of the prevailing musical comedy, possessing an abundance of tuneful, popular melodies, and a comedy element which keeps an audience constantly laughing and applauding. Supplementing these features are the adjuncts, which justify the designation "extravaganza" as distinguished from musical comedy. They embrace huge sets of fantastic scenery, beautifully conceived and wonderfully executed transformations, unique and brilliant electrical effects, massive "properties" and mythical characterizations such as are encountered in Fairyland tales. It is a vast kaleidoscopic assemblage of the stagemaster's art.

While the spectators enjoy the feast of mirth and melody, they are carried along from one magnificent moving picture to another practically without cessation. It is a constant, ever-changing series of "effects," which delight the senses of hearing and seeing so perfectly that the onlooker is thoroughly entertained during the entire progress of the show. All of the people of last season's company, who made distinctive hits here are retained in the cast.

"THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES"

Chicago has a woman dramatic critic who is one of the best-known theatrical writers on the American press. This woman, Miss Amy Leslie, has for a number of years been the critic on the Chicago Daily News, and the theatergoers of that city rely strongly upon her criticisms of a new play before purchasing their seats.

In speaking of "The House of a Thousand Candles," the attraction at the Opera House on next Monday, Miss Leslie says: "The audience at the Garrick liked the play, and there will be many, many audience that will go wild over it."

"The House of a Thousand Candles" is a dramatization of Meredith Nicholson's famous novel of the same title, and was originally produced at Daly's theater, New York city, where it ran four weeks and was then transferred to the Hackett theater, where it ran for the balance of the season.

CELEBRITIES AT THE MAJESTIC THIS WEEK

The show which opens at the Majestic this afternoon for a week's engagement is not wanting in celebrities, for two of the leading performers, Billy Clark, the minstrel, and Tom Linton, the comedian, are known wherever the footlights burn, while the five musical Lovelands are known in musical circles throughout the country, and Gertie Everett has an international reputation, being recognized as the star comedienne of Australia.

Tom Linton and his Jungle Girls—seven of them—are the headliner, but "Minstrel Billy" Clark, as great a blackface artist as ever lived, is a close second, with the Lovelands and Miss Everett running the leaders close. Then there will be two sets of moving pictures shown by the Majesticscope and a new concert orchestra program. A truly great offering for 10, 20 and 30 cents.

A NATIONAL BUREAU OF HEALTH.

THE proposal to establish a National Bureau of Health is meeting with a good deal of success, especially since the project received the sanction and approval of President Taft in his recent message to Congress. The Committee of One Hundred which has been pushing this matter, has made a poll of Congress and finds that the great majority of the members are in favor of the proposal. Some of them are very enthusiastic and others declare they will be ready to vote for the bill when it is presented.

It is a rather remarkable circumstance that while in the Department of Agriculture and through other agencies there is a great deal of consideration given to the welfare of horses, cattle and hogs, there is no branch of the government service which has for its purpose the cure and prevention of disease among children and adults. For example, such a bureau might do a valuable and widespread service in looking into the causes of infant mortality, the spread of tuberculosis, the suppression of typhoid epidemics and other questions vitally affecting the physical well-being of the American people.

There can be no difference of opinion upon the question that a well equipped bureau of National Health would do a great and lasting service in the investigation of the causes which lead to such great mortality among the people of this country. The campaign of education which could be carried on in connection with the investigations of such a bureau would undoubtedly bring results which would more than compensate the country for the cost of such a branch of the Government.

USES OF HEALTH BUREAU.

But the work of the bureau would not end there. It could perform a very useful service in checking the drug habit and in preventing the sale of cocaine, morphine and like drugs to minors or those in whose hands they ought not to be. The bureau could also serve a laudable purpose in disseminating useful information respecting the dietary of the American people. There is decided lack of knowledge, not only with regard to food values, but with respect to cost as compared with nutrition obtained. Any information upon this subject is bound to be received most cordially by intelligent Americans, as most of them must realize that there is a good deal to learn upon the food problem.

But the very fact that there are 1,500,000 persons constantly ill from preventable diseases and over 600,000 annually sacrificed to ignorance and neglect furnishes ample reason, if none other existed, for the creation of this National Bureau, with the government at its back, to take every means possible to prevent this great sacrifice of life and of health. The gospel of prevention is vastly more important than the gospel of cure, necessary as we all know the latter to be. To bring a nation's health to the highest possible standard and to lessen the country's mortality is an aim that may well deserve the attention of the Congress of the country until such a desirable purpose is at least measurably achieved.

THE SECURITIES MARKET.

THE recent steady decline in the prices of stocks in the Wall Street market and upon other exchanges has called forth a variety of explanations. The [illegible] of these is that the slump is due to the gathering distrust over the industrial, business, and political outlook.

As a matter of fact one excuse will serve as [illegible] as [illegible] of [illegible]. But it should be remembered that a number of months ago the best authorities in the market, including Henry Clews and a number of others, predicted just such a decline as is now taking place. They reasoned from conditions as they then existed and as they now exist. The fact of the matter is that in recovering from the panic of 1907 stocks in many instances have already gone beyond the high water mark of 1906; the business recovery has already been discounted and stocks instead of going up are quite likely to go the other way. It is pointed out that practically all stocks are higher than they ought to be from the standpoint of good investments, and that is the thing that finally governs the market after all.

And so it may be fairly said that the present slump was due, because stocks, in the excess of zeal over the recovery of business activity, were put too high and therefore must come down. Wall Street's surmise that the decline is due to impending clouds upon the business horizon is not to be accepted as final. For while there may be some reaction the present outlook is for several years of good business conditions. And it is not at all impossible that the gentlemen who control the destinies of the stock market have concluded that it might be well enough to give President Taft a fright about it, so to the end that he may not interfere with their "vested rights" by prosecutions or otherwise. They have not been above such tactics in the past and are not likely to be in the future.

AN UNUSUAL SCENIC ATTRACTION.

ONE of the most interesting collections of natural volcanic formations to be found in the Centennial state is what is known as the Wheeler National Monument, about ten miles from Wagon Wheel Gap in the southwestern part of the state. This tract is about 400 acres in extent and is set with yellowish, sandstone formations which assume the figures of castles, domes, columns and towers and countless other odd and grotesque shapes. It is a veritable fairyland of geological creations with nothing quite like it in this or any other state. The effects of countless years of erosion have made the "monument" a place of picturesque natural beauty, which at once charms and amazes the beholder.

The tract was discovered quite by accident a number of years ago by the late George W. Thorne, at one time a resident of Colorado Springs, and since that time has been visited by hundreds of geologists, explorers and tourists. The place, however, is difficult of access and may now be reached only over a trail, on horseback. Recognizing the picturesque value and importance of the park, Congressman Edward T. Taylor has introduced a bill in the present Congress asking for an appropriation from the national Government of not to exceed $20,000 for the purpose of building a wagon road to the tract.

If this road should be built it would no doubt enable hundreds to visit the Monument instead of the few who now go to view it. It would seem that a great natural curiosity such as this should be made accessible to the public without the present hardships and discomforts which attend the journey. If these monuments and unusual scenic attractions are to be reserved by the Government for future generations, as is now the policy in Washington it would seem highly desirable that ways and means may be provided for the people to visit them. Hence it is to be hoped that the bill as introduced by Mr. Taylor, will be favorably acted upon at the earliest moment by Congress and the comparatively small amount asked for be granted.

FINAL TRIBUTE TO DR. COOK

From the New York Evening Post

We would not let the year 1909 die without a farewell tribute to the genius of Dr Frederick A Cook. With the new year there will be, we think, a gradual change in public feeling towards this most interesting character. Something of the bitterness of the sting that an American could so hoax the world will pass off under the softening effects of time, and the old ability of the American public to see the humorous side of things will reassert itself. Something of his shame will long attach to the nation, particularly abroad but the entertaining character of the deception, the masterly and modest bearing of the impostor when crowned with laurel and wreathed with flowers—all these will find due recognition. Then the debt, too, of the English language to Cook is certain to be admitted by philologists the world over. Has not every man added to his vocabulary at least a dozen new figures of speech? Has not the gumdrop been exalted for all time? Shall we not be sending things to Copenhagen for the rest of our days?"

CALIFORNIA COTTON.

From the Milwaukee Wisconsin

Southern California is going into a new industry—the growing of cotton. Next season fifteen to twenty thousand acres in the Imperial valley will be devoted to this crop. The planters will be men of experience from Texas and other parts of the south. The crop will have the advantage of scientific irrigation. Important results are expected to reward the experiment. The Los Angeles Graphic says

Before the opening of the Panama canal we look to see the establishment of cotton mills on this coast when the yield of the raw product in the valley is stable enough to warrant and a direct trade with the Orient is bound to follow. The long haul of the finished goods across the continent will be avoided and also the freight rate by water route saved to the exporter

The land which will be used for growing cotton was once a worthless desert. Its present fertility being due to a supply of water taken from the Colorado river. Good judges think there is every reason to expect from it not only a considerable addition to the cotton output of the United States but also generous crops of grain, vegetables and fruits, besides which it is looked to to support a valuable cattle-raising industry

It is natural that California hearts should beat high with hope at the notion that the cotton crop of that state will be large enough to warrant the establishment of mills thus emancipating the growers from dependence upon the tender mercies of the railways. There are states in which antirailway agitation has gone to an unreasonable extent. In California the railways have in actual verity carried out the policy sometimes unjustly attributed to them elsewhere of making their charges "what the traffic would bear." This has been illustrated since the enactment of the Payne-Aldrich bill by the raising of the railway rate on lemons from California to an extent sufficient to offset the advantage which growers expected to secure from the raising of the tariff on this staple fruit. If the [illegible] the [illegible] the valley of California irrigated from the Colorado are favorable to cotton and there would seem to be every reason why they should be—the crop is sure to have a fair trial

COME SOUTH, YOUNG MAN

From the San Antonio Light

The cry of the north and east has changed. It is now "Go South Young Man"

The vast opportunities offered by the growing south are now realized by the people above the line and the faces of eager ambitious hosts are turning to Texas and other southern states in search of those opportunities that the crowded cities of the north no longer offer

The south is now on the verge of a material and industrial development that few dreamed possible some ten years ago. It is unprecedented even in the west and far west from whence come stories of wonderful opportunity. Southern ports and southern inland cities are growing at an amazing rate. Take for instance the example which exists within the borders of Texas. Galveston is now the second export city of the United States and now exceeds Philadelphia, which was once a proud second to New York. Last year Galveston sent abroad $52,000,000 worth of goods in excess of the Quaker City, while New Orleans shipped merchandise to the value of $159,000,000 as against $96,000,000 from Boston one of the first ports of the nation ten years ago

While the imports through southern ports are as yet comparatively small, they too are increasing at a pace commensurate with other lines of growth and development. During the past eight years imports through all ports of the south have increased 102.67 per cent

In the south we produce cotton for the world, lumber, naval stores, phosphate, tobacco, petroleum, [illegible] and live stock. In none of these lines have we yet begun save perhaps in cotton

All the south needs is capital and desirable immigration. These are bound to follow, and that speedily. Either the hundreds of millions we are expending on the Isthmian canal is so much money worse than burned up or the south is to reap a harvest of wealth and prosperity from that undertaking unprecedented in the world's history.

A [illegible]

From the New York Tribune.

The organization which Mr Murphy picked up out of Mr Hearst's waste basket last fall has been recovered by Mr Hearst without objection from Tammany Hall. In the hands of Mr Murphy the Independence league proved an embarrassment. It is hardly likely to be any less embarrassing in the hands of Mr. Hearst. It is credibly asserted that when he learned of its theft last autumn its former and present, proprietor roared with joy. He appeared to regard the picking of it up by the Tammany boss in the same light in which the small boy, peeking around the corner or through a hole in the fence, regards the picking up by a passerby of an empty and dilapidated pocketbook which he has planted on the sidewalk.

The trouble with having a political party of your own is that a political party, like rank implies obligation. It must have a ticket in the field every year or it must indorse some other ticket. Now, Mr Hearst's political party is Mr Hearst's political party. It longs for him in season and out of season. It pants for him as the heart panteth for the water brook. But Mr Hearst has never been able to conquer his aversion to publicity sufficiently to be a candidate every year. Three times in five years has been his best hitherto. On the occasions when Mr Hearst's love of retirement proves invincible Mr Hearst's political party vanishes like the dew from the grass in the morning. Thus the obligation of a personal political party is to run yourself or to expose your political impotence

We omit from our consideration of the embarrassments of a personal political party the entangling alliances into which the bellies of its enthusiastic recruits drive a man of strong convictions and uncompromising character in order to turn to the larger difficulty that this is a country of national parties and no political proprietor is content to have his party a mere municipal affair. Mr. Hearst once before, in trying to make his Independence league a national organization presented the diverting spectacle of a small boy blowing on a penny whistle and pretending it to be a ten-foot horn. However, if he gets tired of it at any time he has only to deposit the property unostentatiously in his waste basket, whence it will find its way into the possession of Mr Murphy once more

The Daily Chit-Chat

These are her fruits, kindness and gentleness,
And grateful we take them at her hands,
Patience she has and pity for distress,
And love that understands.

Ah ask me not how such reward was won,
How sharp the harrow in the former years,
Or mellowed in what agony of sun,
Or watered by what tears
—Mary Elinor Roberts

A few days ago I visited a woman who has just passed through one of the greatest sorrows a woman can know—the death of her husband

I found a very great change in my friend

Before the trouble came I knew her as a woman who was always greatly depressed by any disturbances or disappointments that befell her, who allowed the loss of a good maid or her daughter's slight illness or the disarrangement of her plans for the summer to completely upset her

I found a woman possessed of a beautiful serenity, entirely undisturbed by many things that would have made my friend of former days completely wretched

Just before I left I asked her how the change had come about.

She thought a minute and then said

It is simply that I have let the greater trouble dwarf the lesser ones for me.

I used to fret over little things and call them troubles just because I did not know what trouble was. Now that I do know I realize that these little things are not troubles, and I do not allow them to disturb me as I used to"

Fortunate woman

No I do not mean by that that she was fortunate to have suffered, but fortunate to have learned by her suffering

The young people who have never known what real trouble is bury themselves in deep gloom because they have failed to make the Varsity team or win a scholarship or cannot go on the pleasure trip or must move to a new city and break the ties or must give up the college career for some reason

And if you dare to say to them "You have no right to be blue, you do not know what trouble is" they will either be very indignant or else with the patronizing tolerance of youth will forgive you because you never had that particular sorrow and therefore could not be expected to understand

With all my heart I wish they could know in advance how little right they have to fret themselves over these things

But I realize they can't. I realize that the knowledge taught by suffering can no more be communicated from one mind to another than the sensation of pain or pleasure can be communicated from one body to another.

I admit these young people must be forgiven their foolish unhappiness and their indignation when you try to tell them of their folly

But the man or woman who has had some great suffering and has not picked serenity in regard to lesser troubles from it is the man or woman to be blamed—or rather pitied for his failure in life

HOW MARDI GRAS WAS INTRODUCED

RETURNING STUDENTS MADE IT AN INSTITUTION.

Thousands of Dollars Expended Annually for New Orleans' Carnival.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

The New Orleans Carnival, which begins today and will end tomorrow night, is the oldest institution of the kind in the United States. That of Havana is probably older, and similar celebrations in other parts of Latin America may claim a still greater priority, but they are all of different character. They share the popular, spontaneous unorganized bent of the Italian festivities on the day preceding Lent, whereas New Orleans' Carnival is French by origin, and resembles if it resembles anything—that of Paris. The observance of Mardi Gras was introduced into the Crescent city in 1827 by some young Louisianians on their return from the French capital, where they had been sent to complete their education.

They organized a street procession of maskers, somewhat primitive no doubt, but sufficient of a novelty in those early days of the city to prove a great success. Every year thereafter the experiment was repeated and each time grew in popularity. But the celebration was then quite different from what it is now. The maskers provided their own costumes, there was no preliminary organization, the participants were, for the most part, on foot, and the music, if there were such, was hired by private subscription on the part of each little coterie of paraders. Generally, the festivities came to an end with a ball at the St Louis hotel or the Salle d'Orleans, at which only the elite of the aristocratic old city was present.

From these beginnings the evolution of the New Orleans carnival may be traced along two well-defined lines, quite distinct one from the other, though related in their common object. The first is the development of the open-air pageantry, which is the chief attraction of the carnival for visitors to the city, and the other is the perfecting of the unique system of masked balls which is the main feature of the carnival for the people of New Orleans. The idea of the parades was first worked out in Mobile Alabama in 1831, and was thence transplanted to New Orleans in 1838. In the latter year an immense cock over six feet high, rode in a carriage at the head of the maskers, and delighted the crowd with stentorian crowing. Nothing more ambitious seems to have been attempted till 1857 when the carnival, as New Orleans knows it today, came into existence with the organization of the Mystic Krewe of Comus.

Small Beginning

Comus, which still exists, the oldest and probably the most important socially of the New Orleans carnival societies selected as the subject of its first pageant Milton's "Paradise Lost." After the parade the organization gave a ball at the Varieties theater, in conjunction with which a series of tableaux was presented illustrating such subjects as "The Diabolic Powers" and "The Expulsion from Paradise." The second of the carnival organizations was the Twelfth Night Revelers, which came into existence in 1870. It gives an annual ball at the French opera house. Two other important carnival organizations are the Knights of Momus and the Krewe of Proteus, the former organized in 1872, the latter in 1882. They with the Krewe of Comus, always appear on the streets of New Orleans by night, and after the parade entertain on a lavish scale at the inevitable ball at the French opera house.

The day time pageant of the New Orleans carnival is provided by the Rex Organization. This society is essentially the "popular" carnival organization. It has the largest membership, spends the most money and claims a certain pre-eminence in carnival affairs. Its "king" is king of the carnival; its "queen" is the queen of the carnival. Rex was organized in 1872. The maskers who had filled the streets at Mardi Gras with their gaudy costumes, were in that year assembled in one organization for the entertainment of the Russian Grand Duke Alexis, then a visitor to New Orleans, and the bond of union thus formed was sufficiently strong to hold the members in the federation which came eventually to be the most picturesque of the whole carnival.

In addition to these societies there are some six or eight important organizations which make no street display, but limit their efforts to giving an annual ball at the French opera house. Of these allusion has been made to the oldest, the Twelfth Night Revelers. The others, listed in order of seniority, are Atlanteans, Oberon, Nereus, Mythras, Falstaffians and Olympians. At these balls the members of the organizations appear in mask, and the first four dances are reserved for them and for their partners exclusively; after which the floor is open to the other guests. To be asked to share in the maskers' dances is one of the proudest honors of the society women in New Orleans.

At these balls one member of the organization is always selected to preside as "king." The throne is shared by some young woman, usually a debutante, called the "queen." To wear the tinsel crown of the Atlanteans or of Mythras, or some other of the minor societies is an important event in the life of any young woman in New Orleans; while to be "queen of Comus, Proteus or Momus, is to score a triumph of dazzling brilliancy. All these distinctions, however pale before the honor of the "queen of the carnival," the occupant of Rex's throne and the recipient of the homage of all New Orleans.

Rules of Carnival

Generally queen and maids are chosen from the families of members of the organization. This rule has been occasionally violated as for instance, when Winnie Davis, "The Daughter of the Confederacy," was chosen to preside over one of the carnival balls. Miss Davis had no relatives in the carnival organization which made her its "queen," but her case is not looked upon as establishing a precedent.

The "king" is always some member of the organization who has been long in service. His identity is made known to the whole membership in the case of all the organizations save Rex, only on the night of the entertainment. Rex, which gives two pageants, one today and one tomorrow, has two kings, whose identity is revealed to the members just before the pageants start. The King of the Carnival is the monarch who will preside over the Rex festivities tomorrow. His name is eventually made public by the New Orleans newspapers and is the only one in connection with the carnival which is thus revealed, all the other kings remaining unknown so far as the public in general is concerned. The beautiful jewels worn by the carnival kings and queens, made abroad and costing $400 or $600 per set, become the personal property of the wearers, the gift of the organizations.

In order to understand what the carnival balls are, two points must be borne in mind. The first is the essentially private character of these entertainments. The societies consider that the parades are for the public, but the balls are for themselves. Invitations are therefore hard to procure and are highly valued. The other point is that these carnival balls are the descendants of the old "king parties" popular in colonial Louisiana and still enjoyed in the rural parts of the state. In these social communities where the weekly [illegible] is the main amusement it [illegible] young [illegible] who [illegible] under obligation to entertain at a similar ball [illegible] until [illegible] of Lent puts an end to such gayeties.

The average carnival society has between 300 and 400 members, and the dues range from $25 to $100. There are probably less than 3,000 men whose time, money and brains make and pay for the New Orleans carnival. They represent the most exclusive circles in the city. Who they are is a matter of speculation, as the names of the members are jealously guarded. In fact, everything about the carnival is kept a profound secret, partly because it is necessary to make the pageants effective, but also because the mystery whets the enjoyment of the participants. The maskers upon the cars in the carnival processions are the rich, the prominent and exclusive citizens of New Orleans. It is sometimes hard for the visitor to understand that elderly business men, bankers, brokers, noted lawyers and judges should be willing to don the mask and costume and undergo the fatigue of a carnival parade but such is the fact.

An Expensive Amusement.

On the carnival parades and the balls of the six or eight minor societies, New Orleans spends from $150,000 to $175,000. The average pageant costs from $15,000 to $20,000. These sums are drawn almost exclusively from the pockets of the members. In addition to the dues every member appearing in mask at the opera house balls is expected to present flowers and souvenirs to the young ladies with whom he dances which, together with the expense of carriages and suppers, seldom amount to less than $100 for the evening's entertainment.

For many years the chief carnival pageants were designed by B. A. Wikstrom the New Orleans artist who died in New York last year while at work on the Hudson River pageant. The finest floats are made by one firm, a father and his sons. In their huge workshops on the outskirts of New Orleans the work goes on rapidly throughout the year, two or three cars being completed every week, so that within eight months the Comus, Proteus, Rex and Momus cars are all completed. It is the fact that nowhere else in the world can workmen equally ingenious be found to undertake this sort of labor that makes the New Orleans carnival unique. In fact, the failure of attempt after attempt to imitate these pageants has led to the curious practice of other cities of buying the cars after they have been used in New Orleans. Rex gets back some of the money it spends this way, but the other large organizations do not sell their cars, nor make any attempt to carry over from year to year anything of importance. Vast throngs flock to New Orleans to see the carnival pageants. The number is conservatively [illegible] and the money left in the city by this army of sightseers aggregates an immense sum—probably over $1,500,000.

A FOOD FADDIST'S FIX

From the Washington Star

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was congratulated in his office recently on the fact that he, like the poet Masterlinck and other famous men, has taken to the motorcycle.

"And has motorcycling benefited your health?" his congratulator, a journalist, ventured to ask.

"I think it has," Mr. Rockefeller replied. "I won't ask you, though, to take note of my clear eye and good color, or I might find myself in the food faddist's fix.

"A food faddist was lecturing to a large audience on the marvelous results to be obtained from chewing soup or eating nut butter or something of that kind. He was not a very imposing person physically, but swelling out his chest he slapped it thrice with his palm and cried:

"Friends, two years ago I was a walking skeleton, a haggard, miserable wreck. Now what do you suppose brought about this great change in me?"

"He paused to let his words sink in, and a voice asked:

"What change?"

HOLDS SERVICES

Salvation Army Gives Memorial in Honor of Late Alexander Lisenby.—Musical Program.

Memorial services were held last night by the Salvation Army of Colorado Springs at the hall, 13½ South Cascade avenue, for the late Alexander Lisenby, a member of the organization who was killed by a Denver and Rio Grande train near this city last Friday. The meeting was presided over by Adjutant A. Hurst, and nearly all active workers of the organisation spoke. A special musical program was given.

AWAITS UNCLE'S ARRIVAL

Allen Woods, After Sad Childhood, Will Join Relative in This City Today.

Left motherless at the age of 3 months in the care of a drunken father, who drank himself to death last spring, 17-year-old Allen Woods is at police headquarters awaiting the arrival of his uncle, a wealthy cattleman, who lives near Pueblo, and who is expected today. The boy supported himself after his father's death by working for an ice company in Cincinnati. His mother died in this city 17 years ago.

JURY DISAGREES

Discharged After Being Out 26 Hours in Suit for Possession of Horse.

Failing to agree, the jury in the suit brought by Mrs. Kate Graves to recover possession of a horse which her hired man, Arthur McGee, is alleged to have sold to E. C. Newman, was discharged by County Judge J. E. Little at 7 o'clock last night. The jury was out since 5 o'clock Saturday night.

INTOXICATED AGAIN

"Shorty" King fell of the the water wagon again yesterday, and will face Police Magistrate Clyde L. Starrett this morning to receive the 60-day sentence "promised" him last week. "Shorty" holds the record here for being arrested on a charge of drunkenness. He spent most of last week in jail trying to get sober enough to be arraigned in court. When he was brought before the police magistrate, he was discharged and told to stay sober under threat of a sentence of 60 days.

PROBATION OFFICER RECEIVES A LETTER

A woman who signs herself Bertha Bachman, 2004 North Walnut street, has written a letter to Probation Officer A. W. Moore, criticising him for his failure to punish a boy that he has never seen or heard of before. The writer claims that an Italian boy has organized a gang of toughs in Roswell and that she has been insulted by members of the band. According to her letter, she is under the impression that Probation Officer Moore has had the leader of the gang up for investigation and has released him. Officer Moore says he will investigate.

FAMILY COUGH SYRUP

Cures Any Cough in Five Hours.

NEW PRESCRIPTION HERE.

Here is given the most effective cough prescription known to the medical world. It is a mild laxative, too, and this is what a baby needs when suffering with cough and cold on the lungs. A cough or cold indicates poisons in the system, causing inflammation and congestion. Nearly all cough syrups relieve, but make the trouble worse by their constipating effects. This prescription not only relieves quickly, but it cures any cough that is curable. Get one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Mix in a bottle. Take for acute cough or bronchitis twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times daily. Give children less according to age. A few hours' treatment will cure and heal the throat and lungs of all but consumptives. Cut this out and give it to some friend who may need it to be saved from an early death by consumption.

GILLETT FAREWELL MEETINGS CROWDED

The Methodist and Congregational Churches Unable to Accommodate Crowds

The two farewell meetings for Philip Gillett, a well known Colorado Springs missionary who is soon to return to Korea, which were held at the First Methodist and First Congregational churches last night proved to be wholly inadequate to accommodate all who desired to attend. Both churches were filled to the doors, and many returned to their homes after a vain attempt to secure admittance at either church.

Mr. Gillett has just reached the lose of his year of absence granted after an arduous five-year service in Seoul and other Korean points, and, accompanied by Mrs. Gillett and his little daughter, will leave next Wednesday to resume his duties in the foreign field. He has spent the entire year raising funds with which to carry on the work.

Mr. Gillett spoke first at the First Methodist church, where there was an audience of over 1,700 people, and many were turned away from the door. Mr. Gillett outlined the opportunities that exist for missionary work in the far east. He spoke of the great educational revolution which China is undergoing, and told of the interest which the late Prince Ito, prime minister of Japan, took in the cause of Christianity. Prince Ito and the crown prince of Korea together laid the cornerstone of the Young Men's Christian association building in Seoul, and the missionary's account of the ceremony was very interesting.

Good Wishes Extended.

After speaking at the First Congregational church, Mr. Gillett returned to the First Methodist church, and was given the good wishes of many of those present. Mrs. Gillett was enthusiastically received by the ladies of the congregation. She told them of some of the hardships with which she and Mr. Gillett have had to cope in their foreign work, and of some of their conquests as well.

The Rev. Merle N. Smith, pastor of the church, presided, and several spoke besides Mr. Gillett. The Rev. H. A. Johnston, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who some time ago visited Mr. and Mrs. Gillett at their home in Seoul, told something of the work there as it appealed to him, commenting especially upon the important part that has been taken by Mrs. Gillett in the upbuilding of a Christian community in the Korean city.

The Rev. G. C. Cress of Colorado City outlined the work to be accomplished by the laymen's missionary movement convention, to be held in Colorado Springs the first of next month. Professor M. C. Gile of Colorado College, who is chairman of the co-operative committee to arrange for the convention, also spoke, emphasizing the importance of prayer as a factor in the success of the convention.

The other meeting at the First Congregational church also drew as large a crowd as could be accommodated. The Rev. W. W. Ranney, pastor of the church, presided. Mr. Gillett's talk was much the same as at the Methodist church. President W. F. Slocum of Colorado College made an address in which he brought to the attention of his hearers the fact that former students of Colorado College are doing important missionary work in many parts of the world. He also said that former students of the college are among the most active workers in Grand Junction in the fight against saloons.

The Rev. J. H. Franklin, pastor of the First Baptist church, who was also on the program made a plea that the people of Colorado Springs unanimously support Mr. Gillett in Korea, and that the undertaking be made interdenominational.

"There are," he said, "few of us who care about having our doctrines represented in foreign lands. What we want to see is that the people of these lands have the higher light."

The program included special music.

GET EVIDENCE AGAINST SOUTH END PHARMACY

Ketchum and Liles Say Clerk Sold Half Pint of Whisky Last Night.

Through the efforts of the Revs. J. H. Ketchum and E. H. Liles, evidence was secured last night which, it is believed, will result in the conviction of the South End Pharmacy on a charge of selling liquor in local option territory.

The Rev. Messrs. Ketchum and Liles claim that one of their agents purchased a half-pint of whisky from Harry Ausborn, clerk, at 7:10 o'clock last night. He will be ordered to appear in police court this morning. Edward Meisiahn is proprietor of the store.

COURSE BEGINS TOMORROW

Dr. Slocum Will Open Annual Lecture Series by Address on Arctic Trip.

The annual lecture course given by the faculty of Colorado College will begin tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock when Dr. W. F. Slocum will lecture on his cruise to Norway and Spitzbergen. The lecture is fully illustrated by views of the Norwegian fjords and scenes from the Arctic ocean. Complimentary tickets for the entire lecture course may be obtained by application at the college office in Palmer hall or at Whitney and Grimwood's.

LIVELY MAY RECOVER.

Everett Lively, who was injured in the Pike View coal mine January 27, and who is now a patient at the Glockner sanitarium, was reported to be much improved last night. It is hoped now that he will recover.

MANY ADDRESSES AT THE FORMAL OPENING

Representative Ministers Speak in New Boulder Street Presbyterian Church.

After having been in course of construction for more than two years, the new Boulder Street Presbyterian church, east of the Columbia school on East Boulder street, was formally opened at a rally yesterday afternoon.

Sunday school was held in the new edifice in the morning but the formal opening was deferred until the afternoon services. Brief addresses were given by the Revs. H. A. Johnston, pastor of the First Presbyterian church; George W. Stewart, pastor of the First Christian church; G. Clifford Cress, pastor of the First Baptist church of Colorado City; Adna W. Moore, pastor of the Second Congregational church; Merle N. Smith, pastor of the First Methodist church; David G. Monfort, pastor of the Emmanuel Presbyterian church, and E. H. Liles, pastor of the Boulder street church. Solos were given by Miss Julia Berry and Mr. Auld.

The Rev. H. M. McCloud, pastor at large of the Pueblo presbytery, gave a sermon in the morning. There were no services last night.

BETTER ROAD WOULD INCREASE VISITORS

Automobile Man Says Many More Denver People Here if Highway Improved.

S. G. Atchison, a representative of the Colorado Automobile company of Denver, who made the trip from that city to Colorado Springs by automobile yesterday and who is now registered at the Alta Vista hotel, is of the opinion that an improvement of the road between the two cities, as contemplated by the commissioners of El Paso county, would result in many more Denver automobilists making the run on Sundays and holidays. As it is, there are many who come down from Denver in their automobiles to spend a day or two viewing the mountain attractions, but bad portions of the road make the trip a more arduous one than others care to undertake.

"If the road were as good all of the way as it is between Colorado Springs and Palmer Lake, and between Sedalia and Denver, the trip would be an easy three-hour drive," said Mr. Atchison yesterday; "I have driven it in three hours as it is, but it requires about four hours' time to make the ride comfortably. The worst part of the road is at Perry park, north of Palmer Lake, where the thoroughfare is so bad in places that one is compelled to leave it on account of ruts and snow. Graveling is what the road needs principally. If it were put in better shape the amount of automobile traffic between Denver and Colorado Springs would be greatly increased."

Mr. Atchison's company is state agent for the Cadillac car. Mr. Atchison intends to remain in the city for several days on business.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

TERRITORY For Sale—An exceptional opportunity to make big money in institute work in Denver, Pueblo or Colorado Springs. The Neal Institute Company, capitalized for one million dollars, offers to sell or lease the territory of Colorado for the original and genuine Neal three day liquor cure, an internal treatment, without hypodermic injections, to any party or parties, upon a royalty basis. The rental of the territory may be paid monthly or quarterly, as agreed upon. The royalty will be placed at a figure just a little above the actual cost of the medicine required to treat each patient. It is the latest improved three day drink habit cure in the world today and it is superior to all other treatments and stands without a rival, resulting in the fine condition of the patient while under treatment and the permanency of the cure. There is absolutely nothing that approaches this Neal Treatment, for it completely eclipses all others. The prospective purchaser or purchasers will be given an opportunity to watch the effects of the Neal Treatment and its wonderful results, by going to one of the Neal Institutes and remaining a sufficient length of time to convince them of its efficacy. The contracting parties must fully satisfy us of their financial responsibility and agree to open an Institute in Colorado, either at Denver, Pueblo or Colorado Springs, advertise the treatment and treat patients. For further particulars, address James E. Bruce, treasurer, Atlantic, Iowa, state senator and banker. N. B.—This ad appears in every daily published in Colorado.
